MERRY FISHER

Great Design Meets the Sea

Everywhere you look aboard the Merry Fisher 855, you will see clever solutions: a rear seat that pulls forward when the engines are up, then moves back to enlarge the cockpit when they are in the water. A pilothouse that is offset to port, allowing a wide starboard side deck without losing interior volume. A dinette seat that flips to become a companion seat so a passenger can face forward when the boat is in motion. All of this combines to create a special boat, one that feels as spacious as far larger yachts.

Speed, Seaworthiness, Safety

Every Merry Fisher boat is designed to go to sea. With a top speed of over 30 knots (with twin Yamaha Verado 200Hp engines), and a cruise in the high 20's, the Merry Fisher 855 can reach out to far destinations, or cruise the bay in economical comfort. The 855 carries a CE Category C-10 rating, which means that she can carry up to 10 people, and is rated to operate in seas up to 2 meters (7 feet) and winds to Force 6. With her inside steering station and broad glass areas, the 855 is easy to see out of, and protects her captain from the elements. The 855's solid build and wide starboard side deck add up to a boat that is safe to move around both at sea and at anchor.

Family Cruising Fun
